

Preparing for Transformative Lives & Careers

February 21, 2023

Want to build a stronger foundation for your success? We've got a class for you!

Every now and then, the right class comes along at just the right time. As you think about the importance of engagement, critical thinking, and goal setting to your future, you may want to add this class to your roster this semester. Introducing US291: Promotors and Inhibitors to College Student Learning, Development and Engagement

Description: This course provides a student experience, wherein students employ their agency to develop strategies for academic, career, and lifelong success. It encourages students to build a foundational network of support to increase their sense of belonging and commitment to the University. Students will engage in enriching experiences and self-reflection to understand and develop their personal strengths, enabling them to succeed in college and beyond.

At the end of this class, students will:
=> Articulate how theory and practice work together to support self-directed learning.
=> Demonstrate critical thinking abilities and problem solving for deeper understanding.
=> Identify learning management goals, areas of desired improvement, and methods for action.
=> Exhibit a knowledge of educational standards and practices.
=> Understand MSU's resources and learn how to effectively navigate the campus environment and build a community network.
=> Frame college achievement in terms of the larger goal of life-long learning, career and professional growth, and engaged citizenship.

The best career tool you probably don't know about - O*NET Online!

Graduating soon and still not sure how your major translates to a career? Want to turn your hobby or side-hustle into a career? Want to know how your prospective career has changed in the past year? Check out O*NET!

"I want to be a..."

Watch a Video Overview of the O*NET Program

The O*NET Resource Center is the nation's primary source of occupational data. Central to the project is the O*NET database, containing hundreds of standardized and occupation-specific descriptors on almost 1,000 occupations covering the entire U.S. economy. The database, which is available to the public at no cost, is continually updated from input by a broad range of workers in each occupation.

You can search the database by skills, duties, activities, interests, work values, education - there are dozens of combinations you can use to find the career you've always dreamed of -OR- one you've never even considered.

You can also use the myriad other resources on the site to discover your interests with the O*NET Interest Profiler and find more options at My Next Move.

After you've explored O*NET, make an appointment with Deb to talk about how you can use this information here at MSU.

It's never too early to become financially literate - and you can have fun doing it!

Join your MSU peers every other Monday! (4:00pm-5:00pm in SUB 236)

The mission of the Financial Literacy Club \(FLC\) is to educate, inspire, and help guide the MSU community into a life of financial freedom. It is a cost-free peer-to-peer network of MSU students passionate about sharing personal finance tips and opportunities. The FLC aims to break down the social taboo surrounding personal finance, while also educating its members of opportunities available to them now and into the future! The club is open to all students regardless of their financial education background or area of study.

"The club operates under the notion that anyone can be a millionaire, if they make smart money decisions early on."

The main areas of focus of the club are budgeting, saving, investing, donating, building credit, etc. Of particular note are the Roth IRA and 401k as a means to becoming tax free millionaires. Additional topics will be addressed based on the interest of the members!

FEATURED RESOURCE

Off-Campus Student Life

Hey, remember when there was a bank in the SUB? If you do, then you know where the new Off-Campus Student Life office is located. (If you're newer to MSU, it is located on the main floor of the SUB near the new Firehouse Subs restaurant.)

Most students will, at some point in their college career, find themselves moving off-campus. The office in the SUB and the website is designed to help you make a successful transition into the Bozeman community.

The friendly staff and resources will provide you with information about:
=> Shopping for a rental, rental agreements, and landlord/tenant issues.
=> Roommates and being a good neighbor.
=> Move-in and move-out.
=> Transportation and other City of Bozeman resources.

And to make things even easier, you can either drop in for information or schedule a one-on-one meeting with Connor.

"Finding a place to live in Bozeman in the current housing market and/or dealing with challenging living circumstances can be tough situations to navigate while in college."

At their office, you can also visit with Margaret from the Office of Health Advancement (OHA) about food and nutrition services like the Bounty of the Bridgers food pantry, signing up for SNAP, and other services like Medicaid and all the resources available through OHA.

What's New This Week?

Challenge of the Week

Practice ACTIVE Listening

Often, while we are listening, we are thinking of how we will respond. We might get distracted and miss some of what was said. Active listening requires the listener to pay close attention to what is being communicated verbally and nonverbally. The listener is encouraged to interpret not only the content of what is being said, but also the emotions present and the body language.

There are three main components of successful active listening (Rogers & Farson, 1987); spend the next two weeks practicing these and you'll be well on your way to being a better active listener!

Listen for Total Meaning

When someone is conveying a message, there are two meanings to gather: the content and the feeling or attitude underlying the message. An active listener is not only tuned in to the information conveyed, but also how it is conveyed and any nonverbal cues present.

Respond to Feelings

After listening, when a response is appropriate, the listener should respond to the feeling of what was said. In this way, the speaker feels understood and empathy is established.

Note all Cues

Nonverbal cues include tone of voice, facial or body expressions, and speed of speech. All of these taken together can convey a much deeper meaning than merely the content of what was said.
